

Superintendent's Highlight of the Week

April 15, 2016

This week we salute the incredible artists who are members of the High School Chapter of the National Art Honor Society. They recently ran a "Paint Night", based off of the popular trend where professionals take amateurs through a step-by-step procedure to create a piece of artwork. Students demonstrated to their teachers how to paint a picture on a canvas and assisted them throughout the event.

These students then welcomed close to 50 new inductees into the Art Honor Society Induction ceremony this week. The ceremony was keyed by one of POB's own, Mr. David Peikon, a practicing artist who provided students on stage inspiring words of encouragement and shared his lifelong story as an artist.

As part of the festivities, the students held a 4th annual NAHS Art Auction, where friends and families had the opportunity to bid on student created work inspired by Mr. Peikon himself. All proceeds, close to $800, from the auction will be donated to the Sunrise Day Camp in honor of a student who attends Parkway Elementary. All student work, as well as a few teacher pieces created at Paint Night were displayed in the High School Art Gallery.

Thank you to Ms. Elder, and the wonderful team of National Art Honor Society students and Art faculty for organizing and hosting such a magnificent event.
